

Show and tell (December 5-7)

You will divide up into teams, and each team will find a relatively recent article in the popular press on Iraq. It can be on any subject in comparative politics, and on any country. One team member will summarize the article for the class; another will try to put it in context and explain what about it is provocative, insightful, or misguided. Other members of the team will then each pose a question for the class, the professor, or the TA that flows logically from the article.