

Courtesy of Kalina Wong. Used with permission.

KalinaWong1

After days of intense mind probing, I've managed to dig up some stuff I can share!

1) Mandarin Chinese -- I can teach you some basics to help you about town should you ever decide to hop a plane to China or Taiwan. We can cover some essentials such as saying hello, asking directions (& understanding directions), and most importantly, inquiring on the location of the nearest restroom!

2) Potato Pancakes -- "Kartoffelkuchen" German-style...a variation on latkes and hash browns. It's pretty simple and pretty tasty (with some apple or plum sauce to top it off)...definitely good for those starch-craving days.

Or we could do both. We can converse in Chinese over our German-style potato pancakes.