

Strategic Questions from Philip Evans, BCG

1. What are likely to be the constraints (technical, human, organizational) on our ability to exploit technology to address this challenge?
2. What are the best couple of examples you can think of, of very large and successful collaborations (think broadly, not just corporations)?
3. What principles (of organization, power, motivation) do the participants in these collaborations appear to have followed, in addressing the constraints?