The lex Julia de maritandis ordinibus (Julian law on marrying categories)

The lex Julia (18 BC) provides as follows: 'A senator, his son, or his grandson or great-grandson through the male line shall not knowingly or with fraudulent intent become betrothed to or marry a freedwoman, or a woman who is or has been, or whose father or mother has been, an actress.

'Nor shall a senator's daughter or his granddaughter or great-granddaughter through the male line knowingly or fraudulently become betrothed to or marry a freedman, or any man who is or has been, or whose father or mother has been, an actor.'

Suetonius, Augustus 44

He put a stop by special regulations to disorderly and indiscriminate fashion of viewing the games, through exasperation at the insult to a senator, to whom no one offered a seat in a crowded house at some largely attended games in Puteoli. In consequence of this the senate decreed that, whenever any public show was given anywhere, the first row of seats should be reserved for senators...

Suetonius, Augustus 44

...and at Rome he would not allow the envoys of the free and allied nations to sit in the orchestra, since he was informed that even freedmen were sometimes appointed. He separated the soldiery from the people. He assigned special seats to the married men of the commons, to boys under age their own section and the adjoining one to their preceptors; and he decreed that no one wearing a dark cloak should sit in the middle of the house.

He would not allow women to view even the gladiators except from the upper seats, though it had been the custom for men and women to sit together at such shows. Only the Vestal Virgins were assigned a separate place to themselves, opposite the praetor's tribunal.
