Communicating/interacting with people who have a disability

Communicating about people who have a disability
True or False?

1. When meeting someone who is blind, always identify yourself verbally (e.g. “Hey, it’s me, Michelle.”)
2. You should offer assistance to someone with a disability without being asked.
3. If you are having difficulty understanding someone, it's OK to nod and keep the conversation flowing.
4. You should always use "people-first" language, e.g. "person with a disability" or "person with Down syndrome", instead of "disabled person", "paralyzed person", or "blind person."
5. You should not use terms like "see you later" or "did you hear about this?" to someone who has a vision or hearing disability.

Practical Takeaways

• How does your client want to be portrayed/described?

• Terminology at partner organizations:
  ○ “resident” instead of “patient”

• If you make a mistake, apologize, improve, and move on
Other Frameworks

- Impairment, disability, and handicap

- Situational impairments

- Differently abled/temporally abled
