2.2 Sound examples

- Bob Dylan – Like a Rolling Stone (1965). Original 4-track:
  1. Mike Bloomfield (electric guitar)
  2. Bob Dylan (vocals, electric guitar, harmonica)
  3. Al Kooper (Hammond organ) & Bobby Gregg (drums)
  4. Joe Macho Jr. (bass guitar) & Frank Owens (tack piano)
- Blues Project vs. Al Kooper – No Time Like the Right Time (1967 vs. 2010)
  - The Blues Project recorded this in 1967 (producer: Tom Wilson)
  - Al always wanted to recut it & did so in 2010 (but never published)
  - Al performed everything except drums, bass, sax
  - 120 tracks
- Lynyrd Skynyrd – I Ain’t the One (1972)
  - Example of how effects had to be performed at recording time
  - Here: Echo on snare drum (Al’s idea; done with echo chamber) and backward tambourine (borrowed from Beatles)
- The Tubes – Up from the Deep (1975)
  - From their first album The Tubes
  - Among the records that Al produced, this is his favorite
  - Al’s first 24-track production
  - From his White Chocolate album
  - 80 tracks

2.3 Talking points

- Role of the producer
- Role of the album
- Importance of pre-production
- Streaming services and their impact on musicians
- Importance of developing one’s personal musical taste
  - “90% of what I listen to are not popular artists”
  - “I’ll go to soundchecks, and if I like the band, I’ll buy them dinner.”
