Strategic Human Resource Management

Professor M. Diane Burton
MIT Sloan School of Management
Our Goal for SHRM:

To understand the strategic issues in using Human Resources for sustainable competitive advantage and how to implement the changes necessary to achieve this. This requires that we be able to:

- Think systematically and strategically about managing human assets
- Understand what really needs to be done to implement these policies.
HR Creating Value

How does HR affect profitability, cost, growth, cash flow, and margin?

Adapted from: David Ulrich, Human Resource Champions, p.247
“The War for Talent”

“In the new economy, competition is global, capital is abundant, ideas are developed quickly and cheaply, and people are willing to change jobs often. In that kind of environment… all that matters is talent… superior talent will be tomorrow’s prime source of competitive advantage.”

Ordinary People, Extraordinary Performance?

Two Mysteries

- How have these companies achieved extraordinary performance with people who are no different from those employed by the competition?

- If what they are doing is so understandable, why haven’t their competitors simply replicated them and achieved similar competitive advantages?
Several Integrative Themes

- The role of HR in the execution of strategy
HR is about the Execution of Strategy

“The competitive difference is not in deciding what to do, but in how to do it. Execution becomes paramount.”

Larry Bossidy
CEO Allied-Signal

“I could leave our strategic plan on a plane and it wouldn’t make any difference. No one could execute it. Our success has nothing to do with planning. It has to do with execution.”

Dick Kovacevich
CEO Norwest

“I spend a lot of time talking about values rather than trying to figure out business strategies... Execution is what spells the difference between success and failure.”

Lew Platt
CEO HP
Competitive Advantage through People

- A worldwide study of the automobile industry showed that people-centered practices were associated with almost twice the productivity and quality as conventional mass production.

- Similar studies in steel, apparel, semiconductors, and oil refining industries reveal similar positive effects for people-centered practices.

- A study of IPOs among 136 firms showed that people-centered practices were associated with a 42% higher survival rate.

Money, October, 1992
“I’ve tried to create a culture of caring for people in the totality of their lives, not just at work. There’s no magic formula. It’s like building a giant mosaic--it takes thousands of little pieces…The intangibles are more important than the tangibles. Someone can go out and buy airplanes from Boeing and ticket counters, but they can’t buy our culture, our esprit de corps.”

Herb Kelleher
CEO Southwest

- Behavior
- Symbolic action

Key Success Factors
- What specific tasks have to get done to implement the strategy?

Human Resources
- Do people have the necessary competencies?
- Are they motivated?

Culture
- What are the norms, values, attitudes, and behaviors needed?

Formal Organization
- Structure? Controls?
- Rewards? Careers?

- The role of HR in the execution of strategy
- The importance of alignment and consistency of HR with business strategy
- The range of HR levers available to managers
Looking Back on the course....

Exposure to some intriguing HR practices

- Vision, values, and key success factors
- Open Book Management (critical #s)
- Team-based systems (social control)
- Selection for “fit” as well as skills
- Investing in people (intellectual capital)
- Long-term employment vs. free agency
- Psychological vs. financial ownership
- Performance management
HR and Competitive Advantage

• The bad news: It’s not easy to do.
  The good news: It’s hard to imitate.

• The HR levers for competitive advantage are identifiable. The only issue is whether we consciously manage them.

To do this effectively requires us to think about motivation in a non-intuitive way.
Conventional Model of Motivation

As individuals we have:
- Values
- Interests
- Needs
- Personality

These shape our:
- Expectations
- Goals
- Attitudes
- Feelings

This approach:
- Fits our intuition
- Makes us feel good
- Doesn't work very well

Which lead to:
- Consistent choices and behavior

Personality → Attitudes → Behavior
Brigham Young University Study

Not Visible 16%
“I was surprised at myself... I made them call each other names and clean the toilet out with their bare hands. I practically considered the prisoners cattle...”

“I was tired of seeing the prisoners in their rags and smelling them. I watched them tear at each other on orders given by us.”

Stanford students acting as guards in Zimbardo’s experiment
Milgram Obedience Study

Question:
What proportion of a group of normal adults would voluntarily deliver what they believed to be a fatal electric shock to another human being?
The Fundamental Attribution Error

When we watch people behave, we tend to “see” their behavior as being “caused” by something about their personality or dispositions.

When we explain our own behavior, we are far more conscious of the pressure of the situation (e.g., deadlines, rewards, the opinions of others.)
An Alternative Model of Motivation

_This approach is_
- less intuitive
- more useful to managers
- more powerful

_We work in settings with_
- Strategies
- Structures
- Reward systems
- Leaders

_Which get us focused on_
- Specific tasks
- Subunit objectives
- Salient information
- Coworkers

_Which shape our_
- Expectations
- Choices
- Interpretations
- Behavior

_A ttitudes  ↔  B ehavior  ↔  C ontext_
What really “explains” behavior?

What our intuition says that drives behavior

What we observe

What we don’t “see” because of our focus on the individual

Situational Pressures

These can be managed only through selection

These can be managed by designing the context
“Three people were at work on a construction site. All were doing the same job, but when each was asked what his job was, the answers varied. ‘Breaking rocks,’ the first replied. ‘Earning my living,’ said the second. ‘Helping to build a cathedral,’ said the third,”

Peter Schutz
Former CEO
Porsche
HR Levers to Manage Context

- Vision, Values
- Compensation
- Rewards and Recognition
- Information Sharing
- Measurement
- Psychological Ownership
- Symbolic Management
- Training and Development
- Long-Term Perspective
- Teams/Job Design
- Participation & Involvement
- Recruitment and Selection
Conventional View of Strategy

Strategy
- What business are we in?
- How will we compete?

Functional Strategies
- Marketing, manufacturing, finance, HR, etc.

Key Success Factors
- What critical tasks must get done to execute the strategy?

Organizational Alignment
- Design practices and systems (recruitment and selection, performance management, Training and development, etc.)

Senior Management Role
- Monitor alignment and compliance
A Values-Based View of Strategy

Fundamental values or beliefs
- What are our basic principles?
- What do we believe in?

Design management practices that reflect and embody these values
- What policies and practices are consistent with these values?

Use these to build core capabilities
- What can we do for the customer better than our competitors?

Invent a strategy consistent with the values using capabilities to compete in new and unusual ways
- Given our capabilities, how can we deliver value to customers in a way our competitors cannot easily imitate?

Senior Management’s Role
- Manage the values and culture of the firm.
All Organizations Have “Values”

“Business people don’t like to talk about values. But without these, all business is about is making money. To me, achieving business goals is great. But no business goal is worth sacrificing your values…You can build an organization based on mutual loyalty, even in today’s economy. But you can’t do it if you treat people as disposable.”

Pat Kelly
CEO, PSS World
What are the values of this organization?

- Career resilience
- Employment at will
- “Buy” rather than “Make”
- Lean staffing
- Periodic downsizing
- Outsourcing
- Individual incentives
- Pay-for-performance
- Wage dispersion
- Shareholder value first and last
“These organizations place less emphasis on following a clear strategy than on building a rich, engaging corporate purpose…focus less on formal structural design and more on effective management processes…and are less concerned with controlling employees’ behavior than with developing their capabilities. Such a transformation can start only with top management.”

Chris Bartlett and Sumantra Ghoshal
Value-based Practices

- Values and culture come first.
- Hiring for fit.
- Investment and opportunities for all people in the company.
- Widespread information sharing of operational and financial data.
- Reliance on teams and involvement.
- Emphasis on equity and non-monetary rewards.
- Leaders, not managers.

HR’s Role

- The job of Human Resources is NOT primarily to:
  - Keep the company out of court
  - Enforce rules and maintain consistency.
  - Manage administrative processes.
  - Tell people “No”.

- HR’s job is to:
  - Help build and reinforce the company’s values and culture
  - Play a leadership role in building capabilities that ensure the successful execution of business strategy.
“The most effective way to forge a winning team is to call on the player’s needs to connect with something larger than themselves.”

Phil Jackson
Former coach of the Chicago Bulls, now coach of the L.A. Lakers
